round about with suzanne

At the end of the harvest season is the day of Thanksgiving, when the anticipation of seeing home folks and old friends, to share with them our gladness for a bountiful year, recalls early memories of that day to everyone—that joyous ritual of preparing the turkey while you watch your mother, wide-eyed; that spicy aroma of mincemeat and pumpkin giving your patience a supreme test; the breathless struggle for drumstick and wishbone. These memories brought many families and friends together yesterday.

Rivaling the famous Christmas tree lighting at Pasadena and elsewhere, San Diego will this year have the double row of acacias on Laurel street clear through Balboa park illuminated with thousands of brilliant electric lights when the fourth annual free electric show opens Saturday night, November 28.

This gorgeous display, created through the cooperation of the San Diego Park Board and the Bureau of Radio & Electrical Appliances, which is sponsoring the show, will be maintained thru out the five days and nights of the show from Saturday until Wednesday.

BROOM EDITOR SPEAKER AT KIWANIS MEETING

J. D. Watson, vice president, presided at Kiwanis luncheon meeting Wednesday with Griffith Lloyd as chairman for the day. Griff had for guest speaker, C. Leon de Aryan, editor of The Broom, staunch advocate of the truth, and unafraid to voice his convictions.

The speaker on Tuesday was attacked on the waterfront of San Diego as he came from a steamer, where he had interviewed the captain, and for his stand and outspoken protest against Union domination, he was manhandled and then thrown into the bay. de Aryan, however, is accustomed to adversity and rising to the top of the water, it was easy for him to swim to a nearby float. He immediately took up the case with the district attorney and has sworn out warrants for the arrest of his attackers whom he hopes to identify in the very near future.

Editor de Aryan gave briefly the instigation of the maritime strike; its origination in Moscow last July; according to his theory and the ultimate control of all transportation and industry is the program he says, if it succeeds as the leaders hope.

He urged everyone to think for themselves and not let racketeers run our nation and our lives which, is claimed as being done to a large extent, even in our schools, colleges and universities, as well as in the general professional set-up of our nation.

Decline in Relief Rolls Predicted by Hopkins

IN HIS first press conference since the Presidential election Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, asserted his belief that relief rolls this winter would be at the lowest point since the start of the depression.

H.L.Hopkins

He estimated that 3,750,000 families and single persons would be receiving federal and local aid January 1, 1937, compared to a peak of 5,316,000 in January, 1935.

"I think," Hopkins said confidently, "that we will go into January of this year caring for 1,000,000 less cases than a year ago and a reduction of about 1,500,000 from 1935."

The administrator's attention was called to the fact that latest figures showed that 3,498,012 persons were employed the first two weeks of October, an increase of 29,020 over the preceding half month. He explained this by pointing out that the drouth in the Midwest added 32,831 destitute farmers to his WPA project list.

Steel Workers Ask for Legislation

FIRST of the big groups that aided in the re-election of President Roosevelt to call on him for their reward, the steel workers have asked that the Chief Executive recommend to the next congress the passage of legislation outlawing company unions and forbidding coercion of workers by employers. George A. Patterson and Elmer J. Malol, employee representatives of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company, carried this request to the White House.

The Carnegie - Illinois company has offered employees a 10 per cent wage increase on condition that workers sign an agreement to permit adjustment of wages to the cost of living. At his press conference President Roosevelt said living costs should not be permitted to operate to curb wage increases. Furthermore, Secretary of Labor Perkins ruled informally that the employee representatives had no authority to sign such an agreement for their fellow employees.

Labor Board Dissolves Harvester Council Plan

EMPLOYER corporations were hit by a ruling of the National Labor Relations board ordering the dissolution of the "industrial council plan" of the International Harvester company at the plant in Fort Wayne, Ind.

While the ruling dealt only with the Indiana plant, the board pointed out that the same plan also exists in the other 14 Harvester plants in the United States and Canada. It sets a precedent also for future decisions in regard to similar plans in other manufacturing plants throughout the country.

The industrial council of the Harvester company is an illegal labor organization under the terms of the National Labor Relations act, the board ruled. Under it the employees possess "only the shadow, not the substance, of collective bargaining," according to the decision. Numerous benefits conferred on the employees under the plan are admitted but the board says most of them "are granted in the form of paternalism."

A. F. of L. Council's Report on Social Security Act

WHEN the American Federation of Labor's annual convention opened in Tampa it had before it the report of the executive council dealing with, among many other topics, the social security act. The report heartily approved of a federal social security program and urged adoption of state laws that would give labor the greatest possible benefit from the federal statute. If the federal law is unconstitutional, the council said, "it is clear that its provisions must be changed or that sanction must be afforded to them through an amendment to the constitution."

The council questioned the wisdom of obtaining the necessary funds through a payroll tax "which to a great extent is to be paid directly or indirectly by the workers involved" and suggested that congress repeal this feature of the law as soon as it convenes.

In discussing unemployment since NRA's end, the council said:

"The shorter work week and the six hour day furnish the real solution to the insistent problem of unemployment. It is the responsibility that private industry must accept in order to give the necessary balance to economic expansion."

The council reported a membership of 3,422,398 on August 31—the greatest since 1921.

The council dismissed John L. Lewis' epochal rebellion with a detailed factual account of its progress during the last year. "Appropriate action" was suggested.

George L. Berry, national co-ordinator for industrial recovery and president of the Printing Pressmen's union, proposed that the controversy with Lewis and his C. I. O. group be ended by arbitration, but this was rejected by President Green and other federation leaders. John P. Frey lost no time in introducing his resolution for expulsion of the rebel unions with their membership of over a million.

President Starts on His Ocean Cruise

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT went by train to Charleston, S. C., to board the cruiser Indianapolis for a jaunt in southern waters. He said he was not certain where the ship would take him, but in Washington it was assumed that he would proceed at once for Buenos Aires to attend the opening of the Pan-American peace conference on December 1. In that case he will make stops at Port of Spain, Rio de Janeiro and Montevideo, and will not return before December 15. If his plans are changed, he will merely spend two or three weeks fishing in the Caribbean.

At his last press conference before departing the President said he had about completed drafting the 1937 budget. He said also that he had outlined to his subordinates the things he wants done during his absence, these including:

Drafting of a farm tenancy law to end evils attending the system of share-cropping and farm tenancy, now chiefly prevalent in the South.

Clarifying amendments to the social security act.

Amendments to the Tennessee Valley Authority act, permitting broader social and economic improvement of the regions served by the TVA's huge power projects.

Year's Breathing Spell Likely for Farmers

SECRETARY of Agriculture Wallace in an interview intimates that for a year there may be no new legislation for crop control along the lines of the outlawed AAA, for farmers would like to have one really good crop without forced curtailment. But he added: "We will need some legislation eventually unless the weather changes or the world demand for our products greatly improves."

Sec. Wallace

Wallace was asked whether the lack of a control plan might not result in another surplus, leaving the administration up in the air without any machinery to cope with it. He said he could not estimate a surplus ahead of time and that he would rather wait to see what would happen.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., to Marry Ethel du Pont

THE engagement of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., third son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, to Miss Ethel du Pont of Wilmington, Del., was announced by the young lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont. There had been rumors of this romance for months, but announcement was delayed until after the election. The wedding will be in June after Mr. Roosevelt's graduation from Harvard, and will be a quiet affair. Miss du Pont's father is a member of the board of directors of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company. She is a niece of Lammot du Pont, president of the company; of Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the board, and of Irenee du Pont, another director of the board. She was presented to society on June 27 last.

Loyalists Defend Madrid With Desperation

LOYALIST defenders of Madrid, reinforced by troops from the southeast and apparently supplied with airplanes and tanks from Russia, put up unexpected resistance to the furious attacks of the Fascists, delaying the capture of the capital. The insurgents sent many planes to rain bombs on the city and there were dramatic battles in the sir as well as on land. The attackers at one time smashed the defending lines at the Los Franceses bridge and forced their way across the Manzanares river and into the northwest quarter of Madrid, but probably retired, for the loyalists dynamited the bridge and captured several rebel tanks. The new supreme defense council in the capital, taking charge when the president and other government officials fled to Valencia, was reported to be functioning smoothly and was confident of ultimate victory over the rebels, even if Madrid were lost to them.

Clark Howell, Eminent Editor, Is Dead

CLARK HOWELL, editor and president of the Atlanta Constitution and one of the best known journalists in the United States, died at his home in Atlanta at the age of seventy-three after a long illness. He was one of the original directors of the Associated Press. He was elected to the position at the time of its incorporation in 1900 and held it at the time of his death.

Always active in state and national politics, Mr. Howell was a pioneer in the formation of "Roosevelt for President" clubs. He was offered his choice of several diplomatic posts in 1933 but declined, saying he felt he could better serve the President and the nation as publisher of the Constitution. He was at various times a member of temporary national commissions, but in the main devoted his time to his journalistic labors. A few years ago the Constitution won the Pulitzer prize for "meritorious service" in exposing political conditions in Atlanta.

Secretary Roper Plans Census of Jobless

NOW that the election is over, Secretary of Commerce Roper is laying plans for the complete census of the unemployed in the United States which has so long been called for. He said he would ask congress to appropriate between 13 and 15 million dollars for this count and that it would require the services of about 25,000 persons who would be given special training for several months.

Sec. Roper

"The census would not only take up an enumeration of those classified as unemployed," said Roper, "but we want to find out which trades or industries the unemployed would fall into. We would also like to help the states in classifying the unemployed from the unemployable.

"There are many economic questions involved. Some families have enough income to support them, but one or more members may be out of work. We want to obtain information on this phase."

Government Buys 9 Million Acres of Poor Farm Land

REXFORD G. TUGWELL, Resettlement administrator, announced that the government had acquired more than nine million acres of land considered unsuitable for crop production, and he added that it should buy ten times as much. The Resettlement administration is committed to pay $39,916,603 for the land, under option in 210 different projects in 44 states at an average price of $4.40 an acre.

These acres, Tugwell said, "could not support human subsistence" when used as they have been, and so were being restored to grazing, forestry, recreation, and other use for which they were naturally fitted.

Tugwell reported 5,476 families still residing on the tracts "will need aid in resettling." More than 2,000 families already have been moved, it was disclosed, and many others found new homes without aid.

Hitler Scraps Another Treaty Clause

ADOLF HITLER has torn up another clause of the Versailles treaty—the one that internationalized the German rivers and canals. He has announced that the reich has resumed sovereignty over all such waters. The treaty clause was designed partly to give Czechoslovakia free access to the sea, and that nation now has agreed with Belgium to protest formally against Germany's action. British Foreign Minister Eden rather mildly criticized Hitler's course.

Belgium Asks Specific Pledge From League

WITH embarrassing directness, Belgium has demanded that the League of Nations be specific on what help an attacked member nation "could count on." In a note, she demanded clarification of the league covenant, particularly the article applying to sanctions against an aggressor. Efforts to prevent war should be emphasized by the league, Belgium said, and measures against countries which endanger peace should be improved upon.

In a recent speech to parliament, intended to clarify a previous address by King Leopold, Foreign Minister Spaak said his country would assure both Germany and France that Belgium never would become the jumping off place for an attack on the territory of either power.

San Francisco's Bridge Formally Opened

SAN FRANCISCO'S dream of 30 years was realized when the great bridge across the bay of Oakland was formally opened with elaborate ceremony. This largest vehicular bridge in the world has been under construction since July 19, 1933, at a cost of $77,000,000, the funds being largely supplied by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It is eight and a quarter miles long and, except for a tunnel passage through Yerba Buena island, is entirely over water.

The Chic New Princess Silhouettes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SO FAR as the silhouette of the autumn and winter frock, coat or ensemble, is concerned, anything in the way of startling innovations is apt to happen these days, in fact is happening. The whole scheme of things is changing. For one thing it is back to short wide-at-hemline skirts that current fashion has dared to go—fourteen inches from the floor if you care to follow the extreme.

The present wide swing hemlines are indeed a radical departure from the sleek sheath skirts of past-season vogue. Take note of the word "swing," if you please, for it is a word that is a big word in connection with the newer fashions. Your costume to be chic must have "it" (meaning swing) and it is the new wide-at-hemline skirts that are giving exactly the style-right swing in demand.

To recount further the changing moods of the mode, comes now into the style picture high-waist, square-neck, puff-sleeve directoire trends, also quaint Victorian fashions, also Spanish themes, likewise picturesque Tyrolean costumes and that which is perhaps making the greatest impression of all — the very charming new princess "lines."

The princess influence is as everywhere present in daytime clothes as it is in formal evening clothes. From the formal evening angle the message is of regal black velvet gowns cut exquisitely a la princess, the long unbelted lines of classic simplicity sweeping out into expansive hemlines. The very beautiful moire silks so favored for dinner and dance gowns yield gloriously to princess styling, as do also the fashionable metal cloths and brocades.

With all due recognizance of the importance of the princess silhouette in the evening mode, it is in the daytime fashions that the most exciting events are taking place. The youthful, flattering little princess gowns tailored of swanky wool weaves, preferably broadcloth, duvetyne or suede cloth are fashion "firsts" for day wear. The majority of them button down the front from neckline to hemline and they are enlivened with dramatic touches of color—perhaps a banding at the throat and on the sleeves and about the wide hemline of braid in the now-so-much-talked-of coronation colors or in the vivid Tyrolean reds, greens, blues and yellows.

As to the new coats styled along princess lines, you will agree that the accompanying illustration conveys the message more eloquently than words. The models pictured also exploit the use of Persian lamb in ways that are most attractive. The coat to the right goes extreme in the matter of the new princess lines. It is made of beige broadcloth. The buttons and young-looking collar of Persian lamb are typical of the manner in which designers are handling supple and thin fabriclike furs. Developed either in gray or beige there is no smarter coat to be found in all fashiondom.

The "swing" model to the left of black broadcloth is just the genteel type that makes best dressed women look better dressed. As we all know by this time the all-black costume leads the style parade. Note the binding all about the edges of Persian lamb that is a favorite fur treatment this season. To complete the costume - ideal the hat must have a touch (if not all fur) of Persian lamb to match the trimmings.

NEW COAT LINES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Prepare for something different in the newer evening coats. The latest models are apt to have a Napoleonic look and there is also a trend to borrow lines from the dignified mannish frock coat and similar cut-away effects with long coat tail at the back. Formal types of town suits are also taking on coats of this new influence. For these black broadcloth is the favored material. The coat pictured is typical of the new movement. It is designed for evening wear and tops in this instance a light gray gown embroidered in rhinestones. The coat is of slate gray velveteen.

CONTRAST OF COLOR CHARACTERIZES HAT

Contrast in color continues to characterize the fall hats. Dashes of bright color on black hats are frequent. Other color contrasts gaining favor in millinery are: Cocoa felt with ivy green faille; dark Araby brown felt with royal blue faille contrast; dark deep green in felt with ribbon in soft rusty wine.

Some of the shades appearing in velvet hats in Paris are plum, purplish blue, empire green, Chinese blue, harvest grape and cocoa.

Tailored Suit With Fur Is Ideal for Autumn Days

If you don't have to worry about a budget and can go ahead and buy an outfit for now and a warmer one for later, a tailored or dressmaker suit with fur is ideal. It may include slim skirt and jacket with fur collar and cuffs or a plain jacket and skirt with fur-trimmed topcoat, swagger or fitted.

The most popular version of the formalized variety comes in black broadcloth with Persian lamb or silver fox; brown broadcloth with mink or brown Persian. The sports types are finished with wolf, lynx or raccoon collars and are made from the new rough, nubby woolens.

Paris Hats

A number of the French designers—Schiaparelli, Molyneux, Talbot and others, are sponsoring a crown that slopes away from the face toward the back.

Pardon My Visor!

Paris is sending us a number of visored hats for fall. They are the unerring choice of women who want to cast a shadow about their eyes.

Firewood

NO TREASURE chest that I could build
Out of this fallen tree
Would hold these precious magic things
That it has given me:

An oriole's song in summer wind,
Spring sunlight after rain,
Witch-laughter on autumn night,
Blue shadows where the snow has lain.

So into quartered firewood
The ancient trunk shall go—
I'll count my treasures while I dream
Before the fire-glow.

How Many Pennies Your Child's Life?

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies—Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first.

All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy — "milk of magnesia" — many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Comes now, also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." 25¢ for a big box of the tablets at drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Bedtime Story

by Thornton W. Burgess

THE RATS PLAN TO KILL BILLY MINK

IT HAVING been agreed by all the rats in the big barn that they would stand by one another, and the next time Billy Mink appeared would all attack him at once, they immediately began to feel better. Only the oldest ones shook their heads doubtfully and continued to look worried. The younger ones boasted. Had they not driven away the cat which the farmer had put in the barn to catch them? And was not the cat very much bigger than this new enemy? They began to talk among themselves of the fun they would have when Billy Mink should next appear.

"I'm Not Afraid," Said One.

"I'm not afraid," said one.

"Nor I," cried another. And all the rest of the young rats boasted in the same way.

But the gray, old leader still shook his head and looked worried. "It is all very well for you to brag of what you will do," said he, "but bragging never yet won a battle. If we would keep our homes here in this big barn where many of you have spent your lives, we must make our plans to kill this terrible enemy. It will not do to simply drive him away, for he might return when least expected. Always there must be two or three on watch. The instant that mink appears warning must be given, and then all of us fall on him at once.

"As I told you before, the best fighter among us would be helpless if he had to face that fellow alone, but if we all attack him together there will be nothing to fear."

So certain of the sharpest-eyed rats were appointed to watch all the holes through which Billy Mink might enter the big barn. When it should become necessary for them to go hunt for food other rats were to take their places. All the others scattered to their homes. Some lived under the barn, some lived on the main floor of the barn, and some lived in the hay loft. The old rats were still worried, but the younger ones were filled with pleasant excitement. They rather hoped that Billy Mink would come soon. They wanted to show how brave they could be. Not a doubt crept into the mind of one of them that all would end as they had planned.

Meanwhile Billy Mink was comfortably dreaming in the little chamber he had chosen under the big woodpile between the big barn and the henhouse. Billy's dreams were pleasant dreams. That is, they were pleasant dreams for him. He dreamed he was hunting rats. Yes, they were very pleasant dreams for Billy. But had any of the rats in the big barn had those dreams they would have been anything but pleasant. It is funny how in this world the things which are very pleasant for one are very unpleasant for another.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

FOOD FOR THE FUSSY

THERE are grown-ups who are fussy about their food, but sometimes they are hopeless; however with children a firm hand and eternal vigilance will accomplish wonders. Children are naturally imaginative and keenly enjoy a fairy tale, no matter what it is about. Why not use this method in teaching him to eat the things he should. Every woman should be a good story teller, able to picture interesting things out of the ordinary. With really ill people in bed, one may use about the same story for even grown ups, they get pleasure out of the things that the child will, if presented in a whimsical manner.

A dish of floating island, so good for children who will not eat custards and refuse milk, may be presented in a glass dish with the cooked white of eggs on top. It may be a treasure island, an iceberg with a "nut" to be rescued or a raisin will do. If it is not real enough make legs and arms of cloves, a head of a large clove. The rescuer will eat his way to being a hero.

Floating Island.

This old-fashioned dish of our grandmother's day will never go out of style, for it is so wholesome and good as well as pretty. To prepare the custard take three egg yolks, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of salt, one and one-half cupfuls of scalded milk and when cooked until it coats the spoon add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla to flavor. For the island, beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar and drop by spoonfuls on hot water in a shallow pan. Cook until firm or set in the oven to brown. Remove the islands to the custard, chill and serve. Our grandmothers used to cook the egg white on top of the custard while it was cooking, thus they conserved time and heat.

"Home Is Castle"

There is an old English legal phrase to the effect that a man's house is his castle, meaning that he may defend himself therein against injury and violence. However, Blackstone says of this: "No outward doors of a man's house can in general be broken open to execute any civil process; though in criminal cases the public safety supersedes the private."

THE RIGHT WAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IT'S a good old rule and it's good to follow,
Not to call it spring just because one swallow
Has ventured north when the wind was blowing
In a way no swallow has of knowing.
It's a good old rule not to count your chickens
And be disappointed as the dickens,
Not to be too sure, or be sure too early,
In this strange old world, with its hurly-burly.

But a much worse way is to look behind you,
Ev'ry day that dawns, ev'ry path you find you,
When you see some sign that the winter's leaving
To shake your head and insist on grieving.
The chicks may hatch and may not be many,
But some declare that there won't be any.
Yet to doubt all eggs, and to doubt all seasons,
Is a much worse rule, and for much worse reasons.

For, as for me, I would rather follow
The first spring song of some foolish swallow
And count some chick, though it never hatches,
Than to think this life is all rags and patches.
I'd rather think that the winter's over
Than to wait too long and to miss the clover.
If I am wrong, on a dark or bright way,
Then I prefer to be wrong the right way.

THE AMERICAN WAY

If the "American way" is to continue to mean "equality for all and special privilege for none," a lot of inequalities will have to be ironed out of our economic structure in days to come.

This week, for example, enrollment blanks are out to 26,000,000 workers in business and industry for enlistment under the new Social Security Act, calling eventually for a three percent contribution by workers and employers alike. And yet for one industry, the railroads, there is a separate "Railroad Retirement Act," previously enacted, which calls for contributions of three and a half percent, or a half percent more.

The immediate future of this situation is somewhat clouded, inasmuch as the Supreme Court is now reviewing the Retirement Act half of which was declared invalid by a lower court last summer.

But the one half percent discrepancy, in its separate and more costly treatment of railroads, is typical of inequalities that need fixing. Notorious is the fact that stringent laws heap heavy costs on railroads, while comparatively unregulated competitors are subsidized by publicly built highways and publicly dredged waterways. Typical, too, is the announcement that for railroads but not their competitors, there will be a concerted drive in the coming Congress for a six hour day at present pay. Even those who contend for such a law in all industries must admit that one industry alone cannot survive its costs and continue to compete.

There are numerous other instances where the government's function in economics needs "equalizing." And perhaps in the nation's new spirit of cooperation, we'll move more rapidly toward a solution of the problem. The idea is to keep it a fair race, to give no runners a head start, and none an extra handicap. That, as most people understand it, is the American way.

ROOSEVELT AT BUENOS AIRES

Since the world has lost faith in conferences, it is with some skepticism that many persons view President Roosevelt's trip to Buenos Aires, and the inter-American parley that will follow his participation in the opening next week. In striking contrast are the high hopes and enthusiasm of the participating delegates, and actually this may mean that the confab has, as widely claimed, a better chance of actually doing something worth while than any comparable gathering in recent times. The "successes" to watch for are: a plan to insure harmony among all the 21 American republics, a unified attitude toward the rest of the world in peace or war, and steps to stimulate trade among the nations of the two Americas.

WHERE OUR BILLIONS GO

Last week the Commerce Department reported the estimate of national income for 1936 at $60,000,000,000, compared with $53,587,000,000 last year. That is "income paid out," which means total of payments to individuals for their economic services, such as labor, management or the lending of capital. What do Americans do with all that money? Well, with but seven percent of the world's population, we consume half the world's coffee, half the world's tin, three-fourths the world's silk, one third the world's coal, and two-thirds the world's crude oil. Compared with all Europe, we have three times as many radios per person, five times as many telephones, and a dozen times as many automobiles per person. It's not likely many of us will be moving to Europe soon.

During this lull between the end of the political campaign and the beginning of the Legislature, it seems a good time to learn a few of the basic things about our state of California. Perhaps you know it is the world's greatest producing area of citrus fruits. But did you know that the golden flood of fruit from this state supplies sixty percent of all the oranges and 95 percent of all the lemons consumed in the United States and Canada? And did you know this is the second largest inductry in the state in value of its produce, bringing in $97,000,000 last year to be topped by petroleum with $159,500,000? Picking of Navel oranges just got under way recently. It continues from November to May, while the Valencias ripen in summer months, thus making it a year 'round affair.

New blood, they say, is coursing through the veins of the old Chinese dragon, and that somewhat dismembered animal is at last in shape to strike back at Japan. News dispatches indicate that Chiang Kai Shek has put down communism and united China on the common bond of resentment against Nipponese aggression. And Japan's tone has become less blustersome of late, about in inverse proportion to the quantity of modern airplanes and armaments that China is acquiring. Japan's demands have changed to requests, and China is even refusing to grant these. And to top it off, the Chinese are turning the tables by making a few demands on Tokyo. Not that China anticipates defeating Japan in war. But they seem now to stand ready to fight to repulse the Japanese juggernaut.

One of the most successful social nights of the Fleet Reserve association was conducted by the active personnel of branch 80 Tuesday evening when one hundred or more recruits and "old timers" met at the hall on Pt. Loma avenue, for an evening of varied entertainment.

The program was in the nature of a vaudeville show, featuring a Hill Billy trio, a one man orchestra, a spell-bind hypnotist and a trick-dog act. Musical numbers, including community singing, furthered the get-acquainted spirit.

Refreshments were served from a long table decorated with autumn flowers. The seasonal theme was extended with palms and poinsettias, intermingled with flags, to provide a colorful background for the evening of daneing.

Mrs. D. H. Horner was an Ocean Beach representative at the ninth district P-TA meeting in the Descanso tavern, Descanso, Monday. Mrs. Stanley Burne, district president, presided over the all-day meeting. The morning speaker was John R. Lyons, county director of coordinating councils, who discusst the alliance between P-TA Fathers' forums and the coordinating councils. Various departments including art, music and Indian welfare, featured the afternoon program.

PAN-AMERICANISM FORUM TOPIC

Mrs. Mary B. Steyle, in addressing the social-civic forum Tuesday evening at the Ocean Beach school auditorium described Pan-Americanism as a stage thru which the civilized world is passing, symbolic of the idea of peace taking the place of war. In it is embodied the spirit of true progress and a strong desire for better understanding among the twenty-one nations comprising Latin America.

It is in the interest of this union and in keeping with his Good Neighbor policy that President Roosevelt is on his way to attend the Pan-American conference which opens Dec. 1 in Buenos Aires. These conferences were first begun by Simon Bolivar, the "George Washington" of South America. In speaking of the movement Henry Clay predicted it would bring a new era in international attitudes. The first international conference met at Washington in the Pan-American building, 1889.

The speaker pointed out that the coming meet is not in the nature of a peace conference; rather, it is a conference of friendship at which problems concerning our mutual welfare will be discusst. Some of the questions to be considered are the establishment of an inter-American court, trade relations, education policies, and better transportation systems.

In answering the question what can we do to cultivate an international thought, Mrs. Steyle urged that we learn to speak and to think in the language of our neighboring countries, which is Spanish. An instance of such courtesy in South America occurred during the visit of the former Prince of Wales, when 50,000 children were taught to sing God Bless the Prince of Wales in their greeting to him. Besides this basic preparation there are innumerable ways of establishing a new attitude, especially thru organizations. The type of representatives from this country, whether they are salesmen or tourists, have a great influence on their opinion of us. The quality of motion pictures we export to them are potent factors in picturing our life and standards.

Among the groups working for Pan-Americanism in an organized form is the Pan-American League founded in 1930 by Mrs. Steyle who is its international publicity director. Its immediate aim is to organize student groups thruout the country who study Spanish culture and history, writing and producing plays in Spanish. They sponsor exchange exhibits, scholarships, and discuss their progress and new problems at monthly round-tables.

In San Diego, the chamber of commerce is considering the establishment of a center of Spanish culture in Old Town, incorporating the idea of an "Olvera Street," or a community based on the plan of the Padua Hills Players.

THREE times a year, at Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, the people of the United States advance upon a certain huge golden bronze fowl, cut its throat, strip it of its plumage and convert it into a savory dish which fairly makes the old table groan under the extra burden. Since we have raised this bird into a national significance which parallels to an almost equal degree that of the eagle, symbol of the government itself, it has a special interest to all Americans. Although many folks may still be "as poor as Job's turkey," says a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, they somehow manage and contrive to have turkey for Thanksgiving, whether they can or cannot afford it.

In years gone by those families who could not afford turkey turned to chicken, duck, beef, rabbit, or even pork and were glad to get it.

But now let's get back to the question of why we have or try to have or would like to have or imagine we would like to have turkey for Thanksgiving dinner. The answer of course is that the turkey is strictly an American bird and serving it at feasts of thanksgiving is an old and ancient American custom. Some authorities will tell you that we eat turkey on Thanksgiving day because after the first harvest in the fall of 1621 the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth set aside a period for feasting and offering thanks. To provide food for this feast hunters were sent out by Governor Bradford and they returned with a large supply of game. Hospitality was extended to the Indians, 91 of whom attended the festival which lasted for three days. Conspicuous among the game on the tables were numerous wild turkeys, then common in the woods of Massachusetts. From this circumstance, they say, arose the popular association of these birds with thanksgiving days.

This of course is the true origin of the custom so far as white man has been concerned with it. But the origin of turkey feasts goes back much farther. The millions of families who plan on enjoying hearty Thanksgiving turkey dinners this year will in reality be observing a custom that prevailed ages before the Pilgrims first gathered around their festive board in New England. Smithsonian institution records now bridge the years that veil the aboriginal civilizations and show that the Indians of the Southwest domesticated turkeys and fattened them for their ceremonial feasts. While the Pilgrim Fathers, grateful for good harvests and a year of prosperity in the New World decided on a day of thanksgiving to be celebrated at a banquet of roast turkey, really gave posterity the spirit of thanksgiving, the practice of such feasts had been established long before by the cliff dwellers who actually got their birds from a pen as we do today and not from a thicket as the Pilgrims did.

According to Smithsonian records the turkey of the aboriginal Indians more nearly approximated the

When the Festive Bird Goes Into the Oven.

Thanksgiving turkey of today than the scrawny wild fowl felled by the blunderbuss of the Pilgrim huntsman. Most of our domesticated varieties of turkeys today are really descended from the Mexican wild turkey that ranged over Arizona, western New Mexico and southern Colorado — virtually the dooryard of earliest American civilization. The Pilgrim turkey was merely the wild variety of the same bird which roamed the eastern part of the United States.

Just as the turkey was exclusively an American bird in the time of the aboriginal Indians, so it is today. No fowl from any foreign country approximates it. In fact, wherever turkeys are raised today, and they have been introduced to many foreign countries, the ancestral stock came from America. And so far as is known turkeys are never imported to this country. Contrary to popular opinion the turkey did not get its name from Turkey (the country of that name). The first turkeys taken from the New World (America) and sold in Spain were handled largely by Hebrew merchants. Since the turkey was frequently confused with the peacock it was quite natural that the Hebrew trades should apply to it their name for the peacock, or "tukki." More or less common use of this name followed, which easily became in English our present name "turkey."

MAGIC SOUP

Children in Mrs. Karl's room celebrated after their circus with a magic vegetable soup party. Committees were chosen and duties assigned. Kenneth Ferguson had charge of the committee for washing, peeling and grinding vegetables; Norman Pecore was head cook. Barbara Goeb and her waiters set the tables and served; head of the dish washers was Bobby Bingham and Eleanor Prentice headed the committee for drying the dishes. Ralph Mason and La Vonne Montanye took charge of cleaning the tables and room after party. Many of the children repeated the Grace they had learned at home or Sunday school. The children were all of the opinion that the soup tasted good and further proof was that it "disappeared" at noon along with their sandwiches. After lunch magic stories were made up by the children and most of them went to the auditorium to see the real magician. Vegetables not used in the soup will be used to help fill Thanksgiving baskets for the needy.

BOY WINS DOG

Little seven year old Kenneth Ferguson of 4535 Cape May had a great thrill recently when he heard his name announced over the radio as the winner of a real live dog. He won the dog as a prize for naming the dog in a radio contest. The dog and all will soon arrive at the Ferguson home with an ample supply of dog food. The name Kenneth chose was "Fuzzy Boy". Kenneth had always wanted a dog of his own for he felt that the family dog really belonged to his older brother. When Fuzzy Boy arrives Kenneth will be quite happy.

ATHLETIC BANNER

Teams captained by Joe Lomman, Richard Stixrud, Richard Kimball, Lawrence Purdy and Lee Anderson won the boys' athletic banners this week. The boy's sportsmanship banner was won by Bonnie Collier's team. Girls' teams captained by Amy Lou Temple, Jacqueline Reeves, Betty Miller and Nita Malcolm won the girls' banner for this week. Ruth Burke's team won the girl's sportsmanship banner.

CLASS BUILDS A CAFETERIA

Boys and girls in the second grade of Mrs. Confer's room have completed their cafeteria. It is as near like the school cafeteria as possible with a cash register and play money. They have constructed a regular counter with fruits and vegetables made out of clay and painted such as: tomatoes, bananas, carrots and potatoes. Milk bottles have been painted to resemble a full bottle; small Dixie cups are filled with clay and the tops are painted with a creamy white and chocolate brown appearing to be rich ice cream. Dessert items are doughnuts, jello and a fancy green clay cake. The children had a Thanksgiving party Wednesday when they prepared and cooked apple sauce to serve with cookies.

CHILDREN VISIT LIBRARY

Miss Shea's room visited libraries in San Diego to celebrate Book Week. They visited the Roosevelt Jr. High school and the San Diego City Schools' Libraries. All boys and girls wish to thank parents who so kindly furnished transportation.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"Between Death and Birth" the subject of the forum-lecture to be given next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Temple of Peace, Theosophical International headquarters, Point Loma. Mrs. Hazel Minot of the staff will deliver the lecture in which she will outline the Theosophical teachings concerning what takes place after the death of an entity.

Many people believe in a "heaven world" but few know that this is a state of consciousness existing between the period called death and that which is called birth. Exactly the nature of this "state" and where it is will be explained by Mrs. Minot who for many years has been a deep student of the ancient wisdom as presented by Theosophy. At the conclusion of the lecture the audience will be invited to ask questions relative to reincarnation and its many aspects or to contribute comments relative to the subject of the afternoon.

Aztec Stadium and Campus From The Air

This remarkable aerial photograph, taken when San Diego State college recently dedicated its spacious new stadium with a 7 to 0 victory over Occidental, shows not only the Aztec Bowl but also most of the campus as few have ever seen it. The main campus buildings are at the upper right. To the immediate right of the stadium, where 7500 spectators are shown seated, are the Aztecs' huge duplex gymnasium for men and women, the women's athletic field, and tennis courts. Further to the right and not shown in the photo are located the track and field bleachers and oval, the field house and the men's athletic field. San Diego State college has one of the most rapidly expanding campuses in California.

Gene Muehleisen, former Point Loma high school football star, was one of the San Diego State college players taking part in the dedication game.

LOMAN PHILATELIC SOCIETY (Stamp Club)

The month of November has been one of great activity and varied interests for the stamp club which now has a membership of seventeen.

The regular meeting held Nov. 3, was presided over by vice president Bill Melson. A club auction and exchange followed the customary reports and announcements. The new bright orange membership cards were distributed and each member is designated by a number.

On Nov. 10, a social meeting was held at the home of Judy Austin and refreshments were served. The members spent an enjoyable afternoon examining one anothers albums.

A routine meeting was held in room 103 on Nov. 17, with Bill Melson presiding. Bargaining and swapping occupied most of the time. Plans were definitely made for our visit with the San Diego stamp club. Mr. Atherton's collection of half dollars, including a complete set of the commemoratives was on exhibit.

The club hald a 5 minute meeting after school to make final arrangements for the evening. They were the invited guests of the San Diego stamp club at the meeting held Tuesday, Nov. 24. The club greatly appreciates the interest and cooperation shown by this club.

The club has subscribed for "Stamps" a weekly philatelic publication. Several members are receiving foreign correspondence Visitors are always welcome and the club is always ready to assist non-member collectors in any possible way.

Thanksgiving holiday was preceded by two days of very liberal sharing with those less fortunate. Baskets were donated by each home room, both junior and senior at Point Loma High School. Each basket contained a well varied meal including meat, vegetables, fruit, bread and all the extras that the students saw fit to bring beyond the bare necessities.

Student presidents of both groups conducted the meetings, reading the President's proclamation and calling on the different home room representatives to bring the baskets to the stage platforms.

Cash prizes always appeal to people and the Point Loma High School students have been unusually active in trying out for them by way of the essay route. This time they are interested in the eighth annual Gorgas Memorial essay contest which offers $700 for the first national prize. Second prize $150; third prize $50; state prizes $10 each and a high school prize the Gorgas Medallion. Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty are donating the prizes.

"The importance of Mosquito Control and the Gorgas Memorial" is the topic selected for the contest which will end Jan. 15, 1937.

Point Loma students won so many essay contests last year, it is confidently expected that at least one of the prizes will be won.

Four one act plays instead of the longer regular three act variety are being presented by the drama department of the Point Loma High school, at 8:00 p.m. Dec. 4.

Director W. E. Shepherd, the entire cast and the stage crew are giving the school a sporting chance in their offer to turn over to the school movie projector fund, the entire proceeds if they run over $300. If, however, the net response is below that amount, it will be retained by the drama department.

As usual clever acting and attractive stage sets will make these plays well worth attending, it is reported.

Point Loma's violin quartette were featured in the Thanksgiving assemblies Tuesday and Wednesday this week. Selections of the quartette were Intermezzo—Cavalleria Rusticana, Mascagni and Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes.

Personnel of the quartette: Linora Korn, first violinist; Elizabeth Grayson, second; Philip Campbell, third; Jack Wilhoit, fourth.

Playing for the Exchange club of San Diego; the Mission Beach Women's club and the Principal's group from San Diego and Imperial counties definitely places this string quartette as one of the better school musical groups.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Jesus' words, from the gospel of Matthew, "It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve," constitute the Golden Text in the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Lesson-Sermon denounces ancient and modern necromancy, alias mesmerism and hypnotism.

A Scriptural selection in the Lesson-Sermon includes these verses from Deuteronomy: "When thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, . . . For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord: and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "If Christian Science dishonors human belief, it honors spiritual understanding; and the one Mind only is entitled to honor."

A Little Bit Humorous

REAL DOUGH

The two tramps were stretched out on the green grass. Above them was the warm sun, beside them was a babbling brook. It was a quiet, restful, peaceful scene.

"Boy," mused the first tramp contentedly, "right now I wouldn't change places with a guy who owns a million!"

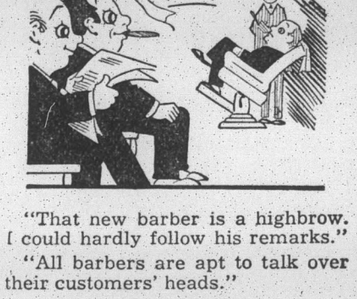
"How about five million?" asked his companion.

"Not even for five million."

"Well, how about ten million?"

The first tramp sat up. "That's different," he admitted. "Now you're talking real dough!"

BARBERSHOP BLUES



"That new barber is a highbrow. I could hardly follow his remarks."

A Real Gentleman

"Johnnie," said mother, "you must not make all that noise when you come down the stairs. Go up and come down quietly."

Johnnie went up and came down without making a sound, and his mother was delighted.

"Now that's how a little gentleman should come down the stairs," she said.

"Yes, I slid down the banisters that time, mummy," replied Johnnie proudly.

Ad Lib

"I would advise you, madam," instructed the doctor, "to take frequent baths, get plenty of fresh air and dress in cool clothes."

"What did the doctor say?" inquired the husband an hour later.

"He said I ought to go to Atlantic City and then to the mountains," related the wife. "Also that I must get some new light gowns at once."

"Will he see again?"

"Jane, my girl, give me another two weeks. If I thought anybody, anywhere, would do anything more than I'm doing, I'd put him on the cars tonight. It's time, Jane, time."

If Jane expected to get much information about the Denison fire at home, she was disappointed. When she reported it to her father, he was silent—professing still to feel outraged at her insubordination. McCrossen was more communicative, even sympathetic; but he knew little about the fire.

After a painful night, Jane rose early to go again into town. In the yard she encounutered McCrossen.

"Ridin' out?" he asked.

"I am."

"I'll saddle up for you."

"Have the horses been fed?"

"Yep."

"I'll saddle up myself."

"Your father rode over to the pastures with Page this mornin'," volunteered McCrossen, walking alongside Jane. She made no answer; indeed, she rather quickened her pace; her companion stepping up his own.

"Your father left word I was to ride out with you, if you went off the ranch."

"I don't need anybody to ride out with me."

"I don't care a rap what the old man says. I'll ride out with you if you want me. If you don't, say so."

"I don't."

"O. K."

Jane undertook to mount.

"Look here, girlie!" said McCrossen suddenly. "Why don't you like me?" Without further preface than a laugh he caught her in his arms. "I'll do anythin' to please you."

Jane, struggling angrily, stood pinned. He laughed immoderately at her efforts to tear herself away. She rained blows on him with her fists. "Let me go!" she panted. "I hate you."

Still laughing, he tried to talk down her anger. She got away from him. "Hate me as much as you like, Janie, but I'm goin' to have you. I'll kill any man that tries to take you away from me," he continued coolly. "I don't care a damn who he is—just remember that, girlie. And I'd kill you, too, if you married another man."

Panting, and furious with anger and fear, she got into her hand the riding whip dangling from her wrist and lashed him across the face and head.

As she dashed away, McCrossen drew paper and tobacco from his pocket, rolled a cigarette, and licking the paper's edge as he looked after Jane riding toward Denison's ranch, struck a match, lighted up, and started for the bunkhouse.

Jane, her heart beating tumultuously, galloped swiftly along the trail, completely upset by McCrossen's bullying and the worry in her breast.

Instead of heading first for town, she rode over to Denison's ranch.

The sight of the ranch-house ruins was a shock, even though she tried to steel herself against it. A man down near the corral was leading one of Denison's horses to the barn.

"Are you Ben Page?" asked Jane abruptly.

"Yes'm."

"How did this happen, Ben?" she asked sympathically.

"You tell," he returned sullenly.

"Tell me all about it, Ben. I'm from Gunlock and a friend of Bill Denison's."

He regarded her with suspicion. "Must be the only one he's got over there," he growled.

Jane swallowed. "I hope it isn't as bad as that," she exclaimed. "What caused this dreadful fire, Ben?"

"How the hell should I know?"

"Don't know what caused the fire, eh? Well, you ought to at least know how to be civil to a lady. Since you don't, I advise you to come over and take a lesson from your brother Bull." Jane galloped swiftly away, more than ever upset mentally. Once in town, she sought Dr. Carpy.

She encountered him in the street. They walked together back to his office.

"How are you, Jane?" asked the doctor.

"I just rode in from Bill's. He has Ben Page there looking after things, and the insolent blockhead wouldn't even answer me civilly when I tried to find out how it happened—so I rode away into town."

"That fire has stirred Bill up terribly—out of all proportion to its importance. It maybe was done to annoy him."

Jane looked frightened. "Why, doctor! What do you mean? Do you believe the ranch house was set on fire?"

Carpy was taken aback. He had said more than he meant to. "Why, no one can tell for sure about that, of course. Some drunken Indian might have set it afire."

"To annoy Bill?" asked Jane incredulously.

"You can't tell," persisted the doctor, gathering courage as he proceeded. "Bill may have made one of 'em mad sometime—ordered him off the place or something.

"How is he coming on, doctor?"

"All right, so far. It'll take time to tell the story, Jane, just's I said."

"Could I see him this morning, do you think?"

"If it was anybody else on earth, the answer would be no. If you go over, don't stay long, and tell Sister Virginia it's O. K. with me." "Be back here at twelve to take lunch with me—promise?"

"I promise."

"And remember"—Carpy raised the forefinger of his right hand—"mum's the word."

The utter absence of authentic details concerning the cause of the fire called for a more active effort on the part of the imagination; and this in turn indicated its stimulation at Jake Spotts' bar. So the old guard were gathered on this morning still discussing the "outrage."

Among those grouped at the inner end of Spotts' long bar were three veterans of the frontier. Henry Sawdy, calm, portly, pulled reflectively at his long-horned mustachios and fingered his well-filled glass without raising it to his lips. John Lefever, likewise full-bodied as old port, whistling "sotto vokey," as Sawdy described it, twirled his glass and listened for the next fire theory offered by Jim McAlpin, the thin, nervous, weather-beaten-faced liveryman.

Toward this trio there now sauntered, coming in the front door, the raw-boned, lantern-jawed, unshaven Bill Pardaloe.

"What's the last news, boys?" he asked in a general appeal.

"Just like the first and that's nothin' at all," said McAlpin. "Give me the same, Oscar, with more bitters. Hold on, boys! By the Lord, if I'm alive, there comes Ben Page now."

Three Veterans of the Frontier.

"Hey! Ben! This way," cried Sawdy as the stumpy bowlegged cowman walked down the barroom towards them. "Come along and wet up."

"Well, Ben," demanded Sawdy, when the glasses were set down, "what about the fire?"

"I jumped through the window."

Neither questions nor alcoholic stimulation could draw out more definite information than this. As to the origin of the blaze, Page had no theory or knowledge.

The longer the group tarried, the more resentful they grew at the thought of Bill Denison's being burned out. It was at last decided to let Sawdy and Pardaloe ride to Denison's together to make an "official investigation." They took the Reservation trail and halfway out met Bob Scott riding into town.

The two adventurers halted Bob, explained their errand, and asked him to join them.

Scott wheeled his horse around, and the three galloped for Denison's ranch.

That night, late, Sawdy, Lefever, McAlpin, Pardaloe, and Ben Page met by the dim light of a lantern in the stuffy-smelling harness room of McAlpin's barn.

"Boys," began Sawdy, gravely, when the doors were carefully shut and outer approaches examined, "it's just's we figured—dirty work out at Bill's ranch. It was lucky Pardaloe and I picked up Bob Scott. He's magic on trailin'. If it hadn't been for Bob, Pardaloe and me'd been scratchin' around Bill's place yet. There wasn't a thing to show where or how the fire started—the job was too well done. But what couldn't be covered up was the ground sign in the yard. Who'd been there last? Lucky for us, there wa'n't many horses'd been runnin' around the yard. Bob spotted three; one was Music, Bill's horse—Ben's been ridin' her. The other two were Gunlock horses, boys. One that Jane rides—that was fresh track. But there was older track—of a Gunlock horse."

"Gunlock horse?" echoed Lefever.

In the murky light of the lantern Sawdy pulled his mustachio deliberately. "A Gunlock horse," he repeated. "And it was the sorrel gelding that most of you've seen. Bob knows every horse in the hills by his hoofs, and as luck would have it, he himself traded the sorrel to McCrossen about a year ago.

"That horse was over to Bill's place maybe thirty-six to forty-eight hours before Scott read the sign. The man that rode that horse over to Denison's night before last knows a lot about who started that fire. Who rode it?"

"That horse, boys, has been rode by Barney Rebstock since he's roosted over at Gunlock with his old pal and boss, Gus Van Tambel. After Bob fixed on the sorrel, Pardaloe sends him up around by Gunlock to scout the question, who rides the sorrel. Then Pardaloe and I rode straight back to town to send out Carpy. You see, Bob could appear up at Gunlock casual-like and ask questions and nobody would think anythin' about it. Bob rides in and out there often.

"Of course, he had to be careful. But there's two honest men over there, Bull Page and the Chink. Bob set down in the kitchen for a cup of coffee—hadn't had no breakfast—and buzzes the Chink. Finally he comes around to the sorrel he'd traded in to the ranch, and asks who rides it now. 'Rebstock,' says the Chink.

"Then Bob waits for Bull Page. He asks Bull whether he thinks there's any chance to get McCrossen to trade the sorrel back to him. Finally he asks Bull who's ridin' the sorrel. Bull says since Barney Rebstock come back, he asked McCrossen if he could fasten onto the sorrel and McCrossen said yes."

Sawdy paused again. There was a general silence.

"That's the story, boys. No, hold on! Barney and Van Tambel left the ranch at daylight this mornin' for the pastures, with Barney on the sorrel!"

"Story enough," grunted McAlpin. "But," he continued, "Barney's pretty cute. If he was goin' to start a fire, wouldn't he take somebody else's horse?"

"I thought that way for a while," intervened Pardaloe. "But Barney can be careless, too—you know that, boys. So I asked Bob to find out, was Barney out that night of the fire; was the sorrel out. Old Bull is a nighthawk around Gunlock—you know that. He may have suspected what was in Bob's mind, but he wouldn't give a whoop anyway. He hates Barney like poison. He told Bob that Barney was the only man outside the bunkhouse that night. And he heard him ridin' away."

Sawdy stopped the general discussion. "Boys, what you goin' to do?"

Pardaloe rose. Some experience in frontier courts of this kind had convinced him that it was time for a sheriff or an ex-sheriff to be moving on. As a one-time representative of the law laid down in statute books, he felt it incumbent on himself to take no further part in the deliberations.

"Run along, Bill," nodded Sawdy. "We'll see you later—maybe."

With the ex-sheriff gone, Sawdy called for opinion as to what, if any, action should be taken.

"If any!" exclaimed McAlpin, echoing the words scornfully. "Man alive, you know it ain't a question of 'if any' action. It's a question of what kind of action."

"Got a rope here, McAlpin?"

"Got 'em big and little, old and new."

"Don't be too hard on Barney," interposed Lefever. "The least you can do is to soap the rope for him."

"Don't misunderstand me, boys," interposed Sawdy. "I want to string him up and down a few times to get the story out of him. A little argument like that'll bring it."

"Boys," said McAlpin, "I've an idea you can catch Rebstock right here in town. If he set the fire, he's got money aplenty. It's burnin' holes in his pockets. Catch your cat in the Red Front saloon; call him out the back door; set him on a horse and ride him down to the bridge—that's gentlemanly and private."

"It's the first time in your life, but I guess you are right, McAlpin," said Sawdy. "We've just got to set the rope watch on Barney."

Ten minutes later found the worthies concealed—except McAlpin, detained at the barn—lined up at Jake Spott's bar.

Jake, still on crutches, was hobbling around.

"How's the leg, Jake?" asked Sawdy, to be polite.

"By rights I ought to be in bed, but I can't afford it."

"Have you sen Barney Rebstock this evenin'?" asked Lefever, casually.

Spotts' face darkened—he, too, hated Barney. "I ain't seen him, and don't ask nothin' like that to make me swear. Boys," he added, addressing the group, "you know Panama spent a whole year tryin' to break me of my bad habit of swearin'. Now, when it's too late for him to know, I'm goin' to quit swearin'. I give public notice, here and now, if any d—d man gets me so angry I've got to swear, I'm not goin' to cuss him out, like I used to. No! I'm just goin' to lick h—l out of him then and there, so you fellows can tell the boys what to expect."

At that moment the back screen door banged on its hinges and McAlpin, sharp-faced, keen-eyed, and out of breath, rushed into the room. With much celerity and many patomimic gestures, the Scotsman drew Sawdy far into an empty corner of the saloon "What's up, Scotty?"

"He's in there," whispered McAlpin "He's in there right now!"

"Who?"

"Barney!"

"Where?"

"In Boland's saloon! I seen the sorrel standin' at the hitch rack in front when I come along up street to join you here, so I went in. Hurry, he's there!"

THE KUNZ MEMORIAL CHAPEL

(Dedicated by Betty Jordan)

Builded of hopes long cherished,
Stands a modern house of God—
And within its quiet portals,
Breathes the spirit of our Lord.

No flair for ultra prestige,
Nor casual worshipers there; but
Earnest seekers of the truth
That panacea, for age and youth.

Soft strains of heavenly music,
Lends grace to fervent prayer—
And to that oft told story
Of our Savior's wondrous care.

Come hear the pure gospel
Of Jesus, who died on the Cross for our sins—and for
His great work of redemption
Now offers His pardon to win.
